

Dr. Angie Paccione

Dr. Angie Paccione is a two-time author, master facilitator, and sought-after keynote speaker with Verus Global.

Over the past 10-plus years, Angie has distinguished herself as a trusted partner to leaders and teams across global Fortune 100 companies, equipping them with the transformative solutions to activate their potential, create stronger work teams, accelerate business results, and advance diversity and inclusion within their organizations.

From humble beginnings growing up in the South Bronx, Angie didn't let her environment dictate her future. With a rugged work ethic and relentless determination, Angie was among the first to earn a full-ride athletic scholarship to Stanford University, and after graduating with honors, went on to play professional basketball. When the pioneering women's league folded, Angie decided to pursue a career in the field of education, starting out as a high school teacher, then becoming a varsity basketball coach, and later a dean of students. She then earned her doctorate degree in education and human resource studies and became a college professor in Colorado. With a strong commitment to making an even greater impact in her community and in her state, Angie became a member of the Colorado House of Representatives, serving for two terms and later running for the U.S. Congress.

Angie's inspiring style and library of compelling stories has helped her to build a worldwide network of amazing individuals committed to building people, partnerships and performance in every interaction. When partnering with leaders and teams, Angie goes beyond simply exploring the fundamental areas of awareness and attitude, and dives deep into the critical areas of applied knowledge and skill building.

Angie holds a Ph.D. and M.Ed. in Education and Human Resource Studies from Colorado State University, and a B.A. in Political Science and Psychology from Stanford University. She has co-authored two books, Do Big Things and ONE Team.
