Collaborative Leadership Capability Key:

Defining the essential interpersonal skills required to execute strategies.

Energize Around a Shared Reality

Members of the group seek a collective understanding of relevant facts and data, suspending the emotions that foster pessimism, unproductive idealism or reflexive notions that cause errors in judgement. Teammates freely offer pertinent perspectives based upon experience-based wisdom, thereby refining the realism and truths the team must share to execute strategies successfully.

Disperse Power and Leadership

Rather than decision-making rights being reserved for those in positions of authority, hierarchy is flattened as teammates set aside personal agendas or loyalties and enable those most equipped in the moment to problem solve and advance the team's strategy. This empowerment is transferred among teammates in fluid fashion, based upon the needs of the business.

Debate Productively, Decide Efficiently

To determine the best path forward, teammates engage in a healthy and vigorous conflict of ideas and perspectives. People refrain from selling or persuading others to "their side" of thinking; nor is there a need to be defensive because teammates aren't attacking people. Then decision making occurs in a manner that best serves the business, such as directive, consensual, democratic, delegated and so forth. (Note: Culture, including geographic location, has an extreme influence on this capability.)

Develop Peer Accountability

As opposed to waiting for others with power to address counter-productive practices or behaviors that occur in the course of executing a plan (such as lack of role clarity, inconsistencies in alignment or performance, and more), teammates maintain relationships that empower them to move quickly and have the productive discussions essential for the team to move forward.

Mobilize Hearts and Minds to Shared Purpose and Goals

Teammates go beyond functioning with only their hands or minds – and bring their hearts as well. This leads to the unique thinking and efforts associated with being "all in" for the achievement of the organization's objectives. Now, passion has purpose.

Defining the essential interpersonal skills required to execute strategies.

Drive a Collective Focus on Priorities

Team members develop clarity and maintain alignment to the most important activities required for achievement of shared objectives. While being inclusive of diverse thinking and approaches, and adjusting the plan when necessary, they stay focused on delivering their commitments, thereby eliminating the distractions that obstruct performance. This is particularly true when members of the group are not in proximity to one another while working across the enterprise.

Tell the Transparent Truth

Teammates prioritize the development and nurturing of a psychologically safe and inclusive environment. Consequently, teammates are better able to be their authentic selves and accelerate the full, free, two-way information flow necessary to leverage the organizational intelligence required for success.

Inspired and Trusting Partnerships

Instead of transactional interactions, teammates use daily exchanges as transformative opportunities to elevate people, partnerships and performance. Organizational talent is optimized and the values of the organization come alive as people bring their best to situations, active the best in others, and seek to strengthen human connections, resulting in elevated intellectual and emotional capital across the business.

Ensure Individual Accountability with Enterprise Responsibility

Teammates fulfill their role in the context of the broader organization's strategy. Rather than working in a silo and saying, "That's not my area," these teammates prioritize organizational outcomes and deliver their efforts in the framework of a network of professionals executing together for the business.
